

With over 10 years of experience working as a tutor and part of a fantastic team with GOAL, I have had the pleasure of supporting predominantly women from a South Asian background to enhance their English language and Digital skills. Many of these ladies had only recently arrived in the UK but some had been here for years but had never accessed learning. I have helped learners with limited literacy skills to be able to gain the confidence to use a computer as well as improve their reading, writing, listening and speaking abilities to then secure employment.

It has given me great satisfaction over the years to witness the passion, determination, progression and confidence shown by women in our community. I feel I have played an important part in the learning journey and stepping-stones to their success.

I love my present role as a teacher because not only have I overcome personal challenges faced by switching to 'online learning' but our students have reached out and accepted these challenges with our support and proved 'anything is possible if you try'.
