

Oumaima Lahboub

At GOAL, I serve as an English Language and IT tutor, dedicating three years of expertise to this esteemed organisation. Proficient in three languages – Arabic, French and English – and holding a degree in Physics, my roots lie in North Africa, fostering a deep-seated passion for engaging with local communities.

Thriving in environments characterised by diversity, where individuals hail from varied backgrounds, cultures and religions, I ardently contribute to the collective pursuit of instilling British Values among women new to the country. Collaborating with both my colleagues and the local women brings me great joy. I find immense fulfilment in assisting individuals, whether in academic pursuits or other personal needs, creating meaningful impacts that resonate profoundly.
